

Strike Strategy Of Miners

Has More Than
66,000 Soft Coal
Miners Idle; Lewis
Issues an Order

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 11—(AP)—The United Mine workers' checkerboard strike strategy has more than 66,000 soft coal diggers idle today.

In the past 24 hours nearly 20,000 more quit work. But several other mines strike-bound since the first of the week have been allowed to resume operations.

Miners now idle:
Pennsylvania, 32,650.
West Virginia, 17,500.
Alabama, 6,000.
Kentucky, 5,000.
Ohio, 4,000.
Utah, 900.
Virginia, 250.

Spokesmen for the coal industry say the here-today, gone-tomorrow strikes are just another attempt by UMW President John L. Lewis to needle the operators into signing a contract.

Nobody knows which mines will be struck next, or how long these pits that are now empty will remain struck. Except, perhaps the player who's master-minding this checker game.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—John L. Lewis today ordered 66,000 striking coal miners to go back to a three-day work week Monday.

These miners had quit their jobs in seven states—refusing to work even the three days weekly permitted by Lewis in his "cold war" with mine operators.

Lewis sent the following message to presidents of the United Mine Workers' districts where miners had quit all work:

"Will you please transmit to our members who are idle this week my suggestion that they resume production next Monday."

Idle in Illinois

In Illinois, 16,000 miners who went on strike last week promptly returned to work Monday as diggers walked out in seven other states.

In southwest Virginia 2,250 miners who struck at seven mines of the Clinchfield coal corporation Monday returned to work yesterday. As they trooped back to work, 900 men at the Bethlehem collieries corporation mine at Barrackville, W. Va., walked off the job.

UMW officials refuse to discuss the strike. John P. Busarello, UMW district president for the Pittsburgh area, at first denied knowledge of any walkout order; then, with the strike in full flower, declared:

"I'm just not talking."

No Nation-wide Strike Expected

At present, about one-sixth of the nation's soft coal miners are idle. No nationwide walkout is expected. That might create just the emergency needed for government intervention.

From a production angle, the strike is now costing the nation about four million tons of coal a day. In Washington, senators pored over means to legislate away some of Lewis' power.

Ten senators sent a report to the Senate Judiciary committee saying a bill forbidding labor to monopolize control of industry would stop the "usurpation and abuse of power" by Lewis' recent three-day work week decree.

Judging by usual practice, however, a judiciary committee study of the situation would involve hearings and take much time before resulting recommendations to the Senate.

Today is the last day of work this week for the miners, anyway. Even those not on strike work only on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Lewis ordered the three-day week after the miners' contracts expired last June.

C. of C. Placards Being Mailed Out

The 1950 membership placards are being mailed by the Chamber of Commerce to all members in good standing.

The placard has a background of royal blue with gold leaf lettering which reads: "Member, 1950—'Where Folks Enjoy Life'—Chamber of Commerce, Sedalia, Missouri."

"These placards are a symbol that those who display them are playing a part in building the city," Mr. Zander, secretary-manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce stated, "and should be displayed proudly."

Crowd at Independent Grocers' Meeting

Pictured above is part of the overflowing crowd of guests and members who attended the annual meeting and dinner dance of the Sedalia Independent Retail Grocers' Association, Tuesday night at the Old Missouri Homestead. A total of 170 persons attended the meeting, but of that total, 40 had to eat dinner in the rock garden, and another 30 persons were accommodated at Dan's Restaurant. Following the dinner, the 100 in the dining room, and the other 70 persons, assembled at the Homestead to watch the installation ceremony and listen to Jack C. Conreux, president of the St. Louis Associated Grocers give his speech. About 10:00 o'clock, dancing with Harry Trotman's orchestra started. (Photo by Padgett)

The Lions heard a report from President A. W. Haller, on the Lions activity in raising funds for the Chamber of Commerce for expenses on the Air Force Academy fund. Haller reported the contributions made at the meeting today brought the Lions solicitation to nearly $2,600. President Haller explained this was only a partial report and all members had not been contacted but several who said they were to contribute would bring the total to approximately $3,000.

Parents Admit Starving Two Children

Boy Died, Girl
Saved When Social Workers Took Over

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—A young married couple was in jail today, charged with homicide in the starvation death of a son.

The father, Guy Scielzo, is a $75-a-week salesman.

Authorities said he and his wife Mary, both 29, admitted neglecting a three-year-old son Guy and a daughter, Vincenza, 5, while two other children were well-fed and well-treated.

The neglected daughter was narrowly saved from starvation when found by social workers, police said, but the rescue was too late to save the boy, who weighed only 14 pounds at his death.

As the parents were booked last night on homicide charges, Mrs. Scielzo, a short, fat woman, became hysterical. She screamed rebukes at photographers, then rested her head on her husband's shoulder, sobbing.

No Explanation

No explanation was offered for the couples' alleged discrimination against their two children.

The father was quoted as saying he knew his wife was not feeding the pair properly, but that he could do nothing about it. For two months before the boy died, police quoted him, he could not bear to go into the bedroom where the two lay starving.

Police said the two children, their bodies emaciated and covered with vermin and sores, were found in a filthy, sunless bedroom of the Scielzo apartment last November 21 by a welfare investigator.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said the children "wasted away before their (parents') eyes" but the parents made no effort to get help.

Food to Cat

The mother was quoted by police as saying she tried to give the pair some milk and chocolate, but that they refused it, so she gave the food to a cat.

Authorities said the reason the arrest came long after the boy's death was that an exhaustive investigation, involving reports of social agencies, had been conducted.

Attention of social agencies was first drawn to the case in 1947, when Vincenza, then 2, was taken to a hospital at the request of her parents; who said she was mentally retarded.

$600,000 Worth
Stamps Stolen

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—The theft of about $600,000 worth of valuable stamps was disclosed by police today with the arrest of two men on charges of criminally receiving stolen property.

Officials said the suspects had in their possession a quantity of stamps stolen Dec. 14 from a safe in the Bruno Lisker stamp collector's shop at 240 Broadway.

The arrest came after one of the men allegedly tried to sell about $10,000 worth of the stamps to a dealer in the street for $5,000.

The men arrested were identified in the police lineup this morning as Walter Gamelsky, 29, of the Bronx, a stamp expert and Louis Felkin, 26, of Elmhurst, Queens, a laborer.

Banquet With Installation And a Dance

Retail Grocers
Hear Address by Jack C. Conreux

An overflow crowd attended the annual meeting and dinner dance of the Sedalia Independent Retail Grocers Association held at the Old Missouri Homestead Tuesday night. One hundred and thirty members and guests were served a turkey dinner and an extra 30 persons were served a chicken dinner at Dan's Restaurant, and then returned to the Homestead for the installation of officers, speech and dance. This was also the last opening night of the Old Homestead until April 1, except for reservations planned ahead of time, according to Mrs. Okeo L. Rice, proprietress.

The main event of the evening was the installation of officers and board members for the coming year. The installing official was Jack C. Conreux, president of the St. Louis Associated Grocers, who was also the principal speaker for the evening.

Officers Installed
The officers and board members installed were: Kenneth Middleton, president; Bob Goldsmith, vice-president; Gene Hermit, treasurer; E. Glen Lewis, Bill Cline, and Wayne Richardson, directors.

Preceding the installation was a short business meeting, presided over by the outgoing president, Mr. Lewis. Milt Hinlein gave a brief outline of six major objectives the association obtained last year.

Immediately after the installation ceremonies, Mr. Middleton gave a short talk, and outlined briefly some of the things planned for the association for 1950. Virgil Corson, a member of the arrangement committee, presented Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Middleton with bouquets of flowers. After the address of Mr. Conreux, tables were moved and the dance was to music of Harry Trotman's orchestra in the garden.

Mr. Conreux told the crowd of grocers, "It is time that all independent operators cease to imitate and start to initiate. This initiation of ideas should incorporate the fundamental principle of being first in competition, advertising, store layout, distribution etc."

The bargaining election was conducted by the National Labor Relations Board. The three unions involved were the A. F. of W. U., C. I. O., and the Teamsters Union, local 534, A. F. L., which organized there when the plant opened, and which contract expired last August.

Approximately 103 votes were cast at the polls, which were open one hour in the morning and an hour and a half in the afternoon on Tuesday and one hour this morning.

ELK CITY, Okla., Jan. 11—(AP)—A spectacular oil well fire that sent flames spiraling 175 feet into the air was still burning out of control today—many hours after it was touched off last night by a tremendous gas explosion.

The well, five miles south of here, was being drilled by the Shell Oil Co. at 9,687 feet when a pocket of "unprecedented" gas pressure was reached. The gas exploded instantly on reaching the surface. A fire resulted but it was quickly extinguished. Soon afterwards, another fire started which forced crews away.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Under sharp cross-examination, a defense psychiatrist stuck to his contention today that Whitaker Chambers, Alger Hiss' chief accuser, is a "psychopath" and a chronic liar.

The mental specialist, Dr. Carl A. L. Binger, resumed testifying in the second perjury trial of Hiss, formerly a high state department official.

Questioned point-by-point on Chambers' career by assistant U. S. Attorney Thomas F. Murphy, Dr. Binger said the "total picture" is that of a "psychopathic personality"—a man with a recognized mental disorder.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) today accused a "left wing group" in the State Department of defying the wishes of Congress with regard to China and Formosa.

The Senate Republican policy leader, in a sharp speech, renewed his call for assistance to Formosa and ridiculed arguments that it would involve the United States in a war with Russia.

Taft denied that he has ever suggested the occupation of Formosa, or sending the Army or Navy there.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—The White House said today President Truman hopes to have his special tax message ready for Congress next week.

He has indicated he will call for a "moderate" boost in taxes. But so far, even his Capitol Hill lieutenants are in the dark on what he actually plans to propose.

Trainloads of U. S. Arms on Way to China

Late Deliveries
Of Orders Placed
By Nationalists

By Edward E. Bomar

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—More trainloads of American-made tanks and other arms probably will soon be on the way to the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa.

Diplomatic authorities said today that 300 tanks, and armored cars being put aboard a Turkish freighter at Philadelphia represented only a part of the belated deliveries of orders the Nationalists placed in this country last year. They were paid for from the $125,000,000 Congress voted in 1948 for military aid to China.

Although President Truman has ruled out any further American military aid to keep Formosa from capture by the Communists, the government has been helping speed the completion of orders already placed. The shipment at Philadelphia came from an army ordnance depot at Lima, Ohio. Some earlier shipments went via U. S. naval vessels.

No Conflict
Officials say there is no conflict between this action and Mr. Truman's thumbs down declaration of last week. The Nationalists already have title to the munitions now being shipped, having checked out the last of the $125,000,000 fund from the treasury months ago.

Most of it went to the defense department which either sold arms to the Chinese as surplus or advanced equipment which is to be replaced as new models are manufactured.

The Chinese embassy declined to say how much arms-on-order remained to be dispatched.

Want to Buy More
If they can raise the money, the Nationalists have advance authority to buy more munitions in this country. Mr. Truman said that "the resources on Formosa are adequate to enable them to obtain the items which they might consider necessary for the defense of the island."

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is believed to have some $100,000,000 left of the estimated $300,000,000 reserves which were transferred to Formosa from the mainland when the Communists swept over the Yangtze valley last year.

Still Hope
In the circumstances, top administration officials decided they had to face the possibility of Russian-inspired military action against Tito. There is still hope that the Russians will not resort to force. But if they do, American officials believe that it may take either of two forms: first and most probable, guerrilla warfare; second, an open attack perhaps by satellite troops.

Some reports say there are as many as nine Communist bloc divisions on the Yugoslav borders with Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria. Several months ago the Communists guerrillas who had been fighting the Greeks from Albania were transferred to Bulgaria.

At present the American government believes that Tito has all the military resources he would require to deal with early phases of any kind of military move against him.

DALLAS, Jan. 11—(AP)—Kaiser, a big mongrel dog which bit a Dallas postman last Dec. 12, began a life sentence today.

Yesterday Justice of the Peace W. E. (Bill) Richburg ordered Kaiser's owner, a 66-year-old woman, to keep the dog chained or securely fenced in the rest of his life. If she doesn't she must pay a total of $183 in suspended fines and court costs—and Kaiser may lose his life.

Cleared Stand-by Program

United States
May Start Giving
Limited Aid to Marshal Tito

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—The United States probably will give limited military assistance to Marshal Tito if the Soviet-Communist bloc begins using armed force to try to crush Yugoslavia's independence.

While officials hope this won't be necessary, the National Security Council is reported to have cleared a stand-by program of measures the United States might take. These aim at the military field, supplementing aid already being given Tito in the economic and political phases of his struggle.

In the light of the council's action, the State Department has determined what specific steps it would recommend to President Truman if an emergency arose.

The Security Council, headed by the president, is the nation's top policy making body in foreign policy. Its members include Secretary of State Acheson and Secretary of Defense Johnson.

Limited Aid

To date American aid to Yugoslavia has been limited to economic and political assistance.

American limitations on exporting industrial equipment to Communist eastern Europe have been relaxed for Yugoslavia. An air transport agreement has been signed with Tito's government and American influence has been used with western European countries to ease economic pressures on the Yugoslavs.

For example, it was learned today that Washington encouraged the British government to make its recent trade agreement with Tito and has also urged the Belgian government not to press for payment now on a loan made to Yugoslavia some time ago.

American assistance has been given Tito in line with an American policy decision that his existence as an independent national Communist leader is a severe handicap to Moscow and a source of strength to the west in the cold war.

Predict Tito's Downfall

Kremlin leaders on the other hand have repeatedly predicted Tito's downfall and have sought by all sorts of economic and political pressures to bring it about.

Tito's trade ties with the Soviet-Communist bloc were completely cut in 1949 and he has strained his resources in order to get needed supplies, principally manufacturing and mining machinery, from the west.

Economic and political pressure from Russia have not been sufficient to shake Tito's

Wrangle Over Route of Road

Some Oppose A Change and Others for it

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A group of Waynesville citizens came here with pleas and threats Tuesday to keep the state highway commission from taking U. S. Highway 66 out of their town.

Under study is a plan to build the highway two miles south of Waynesville, skirting the town but leaving the present pavement through Waynesville as a "city route."

Another Waynesville delegation, asked the commission to move the road.

State Rep. Tom A. Shockley led the group that opposed changing the present route.

He said: 1. Waynesville businessmen depend on highway traffic for more than 50 per cent of their trade—moving the highway would whack half a million dollars off their annual take.

2. The safety factor is negligible because few accidents occur inside the little Pulaski county seat town.

3. It would cost $500,000 more to build the new highway south of town than it would to get additional right of way and widen the road right through town.

4. If the state highway commission doesn't think of the people a little more, Shockley as a legislator promised to see that the commission's power to control businesses along limited access highways is sharply curtailed.

Shockley said the residents of Sullivan, Mo., a few miles east of Waynesville on U. S. 66, already are sorry they let the highway be moved out of town.

He declared Waynesville hotels, restaurants, filling stations and garages depend largely on highway traffic for business.

Even the tavern and liquor store operators in his town figure they receive more than half their business from highway users, Shockley said.

The commission is not expected to act on the problem immediately.

Up Their Sleeves: Spring

Spectacular sleeves are the changing silhouette's abliest ally. The "tulips" (upper left) carry fullness to the top of a white doeskin suit with pert peplum and large revers. The draped cuffs on full push-up sleeves (lower left) dramatize a coat dress of white pique. The "lampshade" sleeves (trimmed with cotton fringe (center) wing out from the deep yoke of a gray linen dress. A "slash seam" rises from sleeves of flame colored jacket (right).

NEW YORK — Sleeves cut a wide swath this spring to help designers who are plumping for the "Top Look."

Noisiest clamor for this new look comes from that arbiter of fashion, Christian Dior. In his effort to carry all silhouette interest upward he has an able ally in full, curvy or spectacular sleeves.

One example is seen in short, full "lampshade" sleeves trimmed with white cotton fringe. These wing out from the deep yoke of a gray Irish linen dress which Dior accents with a black taffeta necktie. Tiers lined up from yoke to hem of this belted dress are faked by bands of cotton "lampshade" fringe.

A belted white pique coat-dress of Dior's design owes its "Top Look" to the most unusual sleeves which have shown up since the advent of the leg o' mutton. Cuffed, accented by black buttons are turned back in a draped effect on full sleeves to give them their spectacular design.

Monte Sano's collection of sleeves includes the funnel, the lampshade, the slash, the overlap and the tulip.

One white doeskin suit of his design—slim skirt with a short peplum-styled jacket above it —

owes its advanced 1950 look to elbow length sleeves shaped like tulips. A "slash" seam overlapped for emphasis just out from the sleeves of a loose, short jacket of flame colored lanol fleece.

Dancing Into Spring

New Dresses Simple, Short, Full of Swing

New fabrics add new interest to spring's short dance frocks. The rose-print damask cotton dress (left), with fringed scarves flying, takes its pattern from old Spanish shawls of rich design. The burgundy-colored chiffon dress (right), with full skirt of shirred bandings, takes its rich color from vintage wine.

NEW YORK — The dance into spring will be aided by dresses that are short and simple but full of swing.

What continues to keep the ankle-length evening dress in the fashion whirl are fabrics with fresh appeal which take their patterns from old Spanish shawls and their colors from old wines.

One dream dress of burgundy background of deeper tone is new colored chiffon, for example, is Eisenberg's gift to the party girl. An ankle-length skirt that floats full circle is made to look like sheer confection, with tucked chiffon bands sewed row-on-row from waistline to hem. Above it is a shirred camisole bodice and a waist-lining belt of burgundy colored velvet.

Death Ends Rebel Wedding

RANGOON—(AP)—A notorious Communist leader, Bo Seik, was playing a grim game of hide-and-seek with government troops. Bo Seik wanted to celebrate his marriage. He tied up his jungle hide-out, prepared a feast.

Then he summoned his friends and the forest glade echoed music and laughter as the Red leader, his bride and their guests sang and danced. At the height of the festivities government troops burst in upon the scene.

The rebel reached for his gun. He was beaten to the draw. For the bridegroom there was death. For the bride, mourning.

"Look at the bow-ends of his tie tucked under the winged collar—as if anyone wore winged collars with dinner jackets these nights!"

Abducted Women Fret India

NEW DELHI, India—(AP)—Two thousand non-Muslim abducted women are being kept by government servants in Pakistan, the government of India claims.

Transport Minister N. Golpalaswami Ayyangar told the legislative assembly that India had sent Pakistan a list of 7,520 abducted women still to be recovered from Pakistan, including "specific information" on 2,000 allegedly kept by government employees in the other dominion.

The abductions allegedly occurred in the wake of the Hindu-Muslim riots of 1947. Ayyangar said that India has recovered 12,000 Muslim women and Pakistan 8,000 non-Muslim women.

Cow's Ferments Studied

SACRAMENTO—(AP)—Does it matter to you what goes on in those extra stomachs of cows and sheep? It should, says C. F. Huffman, Michigan State college dairy expert. He told a recent animal industry conference here that not enough is known about just what takes place in the rumen, or first stomach of cows and sheep.

"The efficient fermentation vats of cattle and sheep make possible the utilization of one-half to one billion acres of ranch land in the United States which would otherwise yield little if any human food," he declared. What is not widely realized, says Huffman, is that ruminants do not get most of their nourishment directly from feed, but from the digestion and absorption of countless number of food-laden bacteria that work on the coarse food in the rumen.

Out of the Crocodile's Mouth Come Russia's Ideas of Life (Haw!) In Hateful Old U.S.A.

By PETER EDSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA) — The teaching of Anti-Americanism has for the past three years been such a fixed goal of Soviet propaganda for consumption by the Russian people that it is now a mania.

That is the statement of Prof. William Nelson of Columbia University, a former editor of the magazine "Amerika," published in Russian by the State Department for limited circulation in the U.S.S.R.

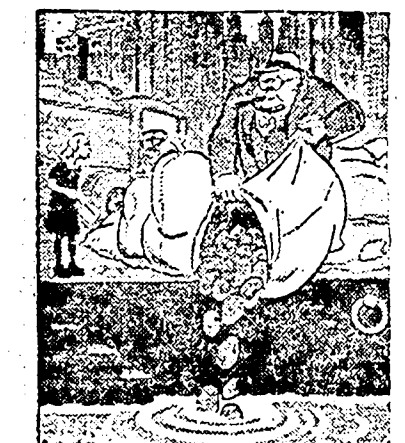

To prove his point, Prof. Nelson has been making a special study of the cartoons published in "Krokodil" (Crocodile), the Russian tri-monthly humorous magazine published in Russia, but its circulation is a mere 165,000. It is nevertheless looked upon as the official Communist line of satire against everything which the Kremlin opposes.

ON PRESS: The Soviet joke—"Jack, write a piece exposing Communist plots." "But I haven't any facts." "What of it? Haven't we a free press?"

Up until April, 1946, "Crocodile" snapped largely at Russian citizens who failed to do their duty to the Soviet state. When Premier Stalin announced that international reaction was making plans for a new war, all Russian agencies of propaganda and agitation began to focus their attention on the United States in a big hate campaign.

America. In one issue, 20 of 42 drawings were anti-American in character.

The reason for this, Prof. Nelson believes, is that the Soviet government realizes that its people will not readily learn to hate America unless a powerful campaign of agitation is carried on. For at the end of the war, the Russian people liked the United States very much indeed, and were grateful for its aid.

To show how this campaign is being conducted, Prof. Nelson has just compiled a book, "Out of the Crocodile's Mouth," reproducing over 100 of "Crocodile's" cartoons, translating their labels and analyzing their attacks against American capitalism, liberty, gangsters, and free press. The Marshall Plan and American military preparedness are also lampooned.

One of the impressions which the "Crocodile" propaganda seeks to put over is that in Russia everything is peaceful, while in the United States there is a "police state."

A favorite theme of the Communist cartoonists is that the American high standards of living are enjoyed only by the small capitalist class, and that the masses really go unemployed and hungry. Every item of American news that can be seized upon to promote this idea is played up, such as the destruction of millions of bushels of potatoes last year under the price support program.

To "Crocodile" cartoonists, liberty in the United States is a myth. Loyalty investigations of government employees were cited as examples of American "thought control." This was satirized by a cartoon showing capitalists examining the Statue of Liberty in search of dangerous thoughts.

The myths that America is populated entirely by gangsters, that the children are all delinquent, that U.S. culture is of an extremely low order and that the masses are uneducated or illiterate have been unpopular throughout Europe for a long time. American thriller movies are of course given much credit for spreading these beliefs, and "Crocodile" is on the bandwagon.

ON FACTS: From top to bottom in this one, called "Equal Partners," are Uncle Sam, England's Bevin, France's Schumann and "Be-Ne-Lux" signing the Atlantic Pact.

Russian railing against American newspapers is well known. Their principal contention seems to be that the free press of America is really in the hands of the capitalists and does only their bidding.

Rehearsal Held By Choral Club

The Sedalia Men's Choral club held its regular weekly rehearsal at Broadway school Monday night with twenty-eight members present.

Ed Martin directed the group in the absence of Abe Rosenthal and Lillian Fox served as accompanist.

A large part of the evening was taken up in business and the preparing of music for coming engagements.

The club accepted an invitation to sing at Housatonia February 15. There were several other invitations read and discussed. Due to the fact the club has a rather full schedule several of these were rejected.

The club will make its next public appearance at the Rotary International Forum Lectures to be held at the auditorium of Smith-Cotton high school starting January 23.

Hazel Vogt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Vogt, fell at her father's farm home east of Versailles Thursday evening about 5:00 o'clock fracturing her right leg just below the knee.

She was given emergency treatment by Dr. Ruth Kaufman of the Dr. Gunn clinic and Friday morning was taken to St. Joseph hospital in Kansas City by her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crow in the Kidwell ambulance.

Miss Vogt is employed in Kansas City and was spending her vacation at home.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Jan. 11.—(P)—A man identified as Benjamin H. Hudson, about 58, was struck and fatally injured by an automobile on U.S. Highway 65 in the city limits here late Tuesday.

Authorities said he had no permanent address. Identification was made from cards found in his pockets.

Police Lieut. Russell Dusenberry said Hudson was struck by a car driven by Henry D. Boylan, 27, of Route 1, Chillicothe.

Dusenberry said it was his "impression that Hudson was walking on the highway." The man died en route to a hospital.

The officer said the identification cards indicated Hudson was born at Grand Center, Mo. Membership cards from a Veterans of Foreign Wars post at Lincoln, Neb., and the American Legion Post at North Platte, Neb., also were found.

Mercy Killing:
N. H. Doctor Who Ended Elderly Woman's Suffering Revives an Untamed Tempest

LOUIS GREENFIELD and wife: For the voice of God, acquital.

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

Should human life be snuffed out to relieve endless suffering? Public attention is again focused on that controversial problem that remains unsolved despite millions of words written and spoken both pro and con.

A New Hampshire doctor's "mercy killing" of an elderly woman, dying of cancer, is the latest case to stir up the debate over euthanasia which first became widespread in 1915 as an aftermath of the famous Bollinger baby case.

Oddly, the 1915 case wasn't a mercy killing at all, in the strict sense of the term.

A baby boy was born in Chicago, to a woman named Bollinger. Dr. Harry J. Haiselden, chief of staff at the hospital, saw that the baby was hopelessly crippled and imbecile. It was obvious to Dr. Haiselden that the child would never be normal.

Among its other misfortunes was a defect which would cause death within a matter of weeks, unless an operation was performed quickly. With the parents' permission, Dr. Haiselden failed to perform the necessary surgery, and the baby died. He hadn't done anything to bring on death, but neither had he done anything to prevent death.

A coroner's jury acquitted him of any responsibility, but the Chicago Medical Society forced him to resign his membership. A storm of public debate raged around his head. To justify his stand, he started in a motion picture based on the case, "The Black Stork." He later moved to Cuba and died within four years.

Ten years after the Bollinger case another doctor practiced euthanasia. Dr. Harold Blazer, a retired physician of Englewood, Colo., had devoted years of patience to caring for the crippled, idiot daughter, Hazel.

Then, when she was 33, he began to wonder what would happen to her if he died. He chloroformed her, and tried to kill himself. Hazel died, but Dr. Blazer lived to go on trial for murder.

"The law has only to do with a being born of woman," Judge Samuel Johnson charged the jury. "It is born of woman and it lives. It is a human being. It is murder to kill it, take its life, even though it may lack all or nearly all the attributes of a fully-developed person."

Nevertheless, Dr. Blazer was acquitted, while newspaper editorials and church pulpits and neighborhood barber shops argued the right and wrong of the verdict. Several more mercy killings, obviously inspired by the Blazer case, followed soon after.

The next to arouse nationwide interest was the Greenfield case in New York. As usually happens, other mercy killings followed soon after.

Jerome Greenfield was 16, the only child of Louis and Anna Greenfield. He was a hulking six-footer, weighing 170 pounds, but he had the mind of a two-year-old. Everything possible had been done for the boy, but he was incurable. He was, besides, a great burden on the family, and Mrs. Greenfield, in particular, was often physically harmed by her hefty, unthinking charge.

In January, 1939, Louis Greenfield, a small insignificant-looking man, asked his wife to leave their apartment. And he then chloroformed his sleeping son. "He is better off dead," he told the police who tried to revive the boy.

Mrs. Greenfield stood by her husband during long months of trial and publicity. A shrewd lawyer had him tell the court that it was the voice of God that had urged him to kill the boy. Heeding the judge's charges that anyone believing himself to be an emissary of God couldn't tell the difference between right and wrong, the jury acquitted him.

Five months later, Mrs. Greenfield sued for separation. "She never forgave me," said Greenfield, "and I don't suppose she ever will."

But the most sensational example of mercy killing was the Noxon case which took place in the fashionable John F. Noxon, Jr., mansion in Pittsfield, Mass., in 1943. Noxon was a wealthy corporation lawyer, a Harvard graduate and himself a victim of infantile paralysis. He used canes to get around.

His six-month-old son, Lawrence, was an imbecile, doomed to a sub-standard life. On that September afternoon in 1943, the baby died. Police said he had been electrocuted. Noxon maintained it was an accident. He said he had been repairing a radio, then left the room for a moment. The baby, he contended, must have come in contact with a live wire.

But the police charged that the infant was deliberately wrapped in wet diapers and placed on a metal tray with a wire wrapped around his arm. They said that Noxon, convinced that electrocution was the most humane form of death, had arranged the elaborate mechanism to insure an easy death for the child.

The court convicted him. Noxon was sentenced to life imprisonment, but was paroled after five years. He became a free man in January, 1949.

Those were only a few of the cases of euthanasia to hit the headlines. After each one, the public heard wordy discussions of the issue. Doctors were polled—and many admitted having practiced mercy killing on their patients. Some ministers favored the practice, but most condemned it. Public opinion polls showed that the people were about evenly divided on the subject, while most doctors favored some form of legalized euthanasia.

Bills to legalize mercy killing have been up before several state legislatures, but none passed. England once considered a euthanasia measure. Most such laws would make mercy killing legal in cases of incurable illness, and then only when the patient himself, at least two reputable doctors and a judge approved the petition.

And now in New Hampshire, the controversy rages anew. A jury will have to decide whether Dr. Hermann N. Sander's action costs him his freedom, or even his own life. Whatever the jury decides, however, undoubtedly will not settle the argument.

Staff Expanded By J. E. Taylor

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 11—(AP)—Attorney General J. E. Taylor reported Tuesday he has reorganized his staff by assigning his 22 full-time assistants to various state agencies.

Under the 1945 constitution only a few agencies are permitted to employ attorneys. Legal advice for other departments must be provided by the attorney general.

Taylor said he has been able to expand his staff because he received a larger appropriation from the current legislature.

Taylor named Waldo P. Johnson of Clinton as first assistant. Other assignments include:

W. Brady Duncan of St. Joseph, in charge of criminal division.

John G. B. Brannon of Kansas City, chief of the new anti-trust division.

Gilbert Lamb of Salisbury, chief litigation attorney and legal advisor for the secretary of state.

Arthur M. O'Keefe of Moberly, special aide to the attorney general and legal advisor to the state board of mediation and the state board of training schools.

Other assistants are assigned to the various state agencies, some of them handling legal work for two or more departments.

Storm Moves Into Northern Rockies Today

Cold Expected to Move Eastward, Ending Mild Weather

By the Associated Press

An intense storm which hampered the Pacific coast, leaving highways snow-blocked and some areas isolated, moved into the Northern Rockies today.

The winter season's most severe weather hit areas of Washington, Oregon, Northern California and Nevada. Snow, rain and hail fell over the storm belt. Winds reached a velocity of 55 miles an hour in some sections, snapping ice-laden power and telephone lines.

The cold and strong winds which lashed the central states showed signs of abating today. But the mercury was far below zero in many midwest points.

To Move Eastward

The cold was expected to move into the Eastern states, ending the extremely mild weather. But, weather bureau forecasters said, readings were not expected to drop much below normal marks.

Sub-zero readings were reported in parts of Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa. Lows included -23 at International Falls and Bemidji, Minn. At Great Falls, Mont., a cold blast from the Pacific ocean sent the mercury down from 34 above at midnight to 7 below at 4:30 a. m.

The arrival of the midwest cold blast ended, at least temporarily, the fairfall over the flooded areas of Indiana and Illinois. Hundreds of persons have been made homeless by the floods of the Wabash, White, Embarras and other streams in the southern sections of the two states.

His death followed a fourth heart attack suffered less than two weeks ago.

Dr. Maier entered the hospital four days after Christmas, following a mild heart attack. He suffered another attack last Friday and another Sunday.

He was a member of the faculty at the Concordia theological seminary in St. Louis. Since 1935 he had been widely known for his coast-to-coast radio programs.

The Lutheran hour program is heard over 1,200 radio stations throughout the world each Sunday afternoon. It is transcribed in 36 languages for foreign broadcasts.

Born in Boston, Dr. Maier was graduated from Boston university and Concordia College Institute at Bronxville, N. Y. He received a Ph. D. degree from Harvard university.

Funeral services will be held in St. Louis Saturday.

Old Missouri Homestead Closed

The unique Old Missouri Homestead, located at the corner of Fifth street and Lamine avenue will be closed until on or about April 1, according to the proprietress, Mrs. Okeke L. Rice.

Mrs. Rice, who designed the unusual interior, which has attracted many visitors to Sedalia, said it was her intention to close probably every year for a while during the winter months.

essay to successful operation." "Knowledge is indeed power, and each and every independent food dealer should know the food business and know his competitor. With this knowledge, he should plan the operation of his business so that he does not meet competition, but so that competition tries to meet him."

The speaker related, "A store that is little in size can certainly be big in ideas—this, in itself, leads to success. Remember one thing—the man who is on the right track can still get run over if he merely sits there."

Mr. Conreux said, "Very few retailers would be interested in going back to the cracker barrel, fresh fruits in season, hand coffee grinder days. We realize that is strictly out, as we have come a long way and whether we realize it or not, we are big operators now. However, I sometime think we have grown in every way except confidence. You are no longer just a grocer or a butcher, but you are now a retail food merchant. You are the head of complex business which requires knowledge of law, commodity markets, dietetics, labor relations, business management, accounting, merchandise inventory control, and public relations."

Have Definite Plan
"In this country," the speaker asserted, "there is still opportunity to be initiative and brains, backed by a determination to succeed, but the man who does not have a definite plan in the operation of his business which includes the distribution of food in the best manner possible consistent with the demands of the consuming public, will not be with us long."

"The New Look" in business is here to stay, the speaker related. "We are living in a time of aggressive merchandising, the kind of merchandising that takes ingenuity, imagination and the will to win. You must efficiently meet the competitive struggle of other food operators. Your every action must be backed by confidence, based upon the strong foundation of thoughtful planning."

In closing, Mr. Conreux told the crowd of retail grocers, "Yours is a heritage of merchandising which is the fundamental basis of all economics. Be proud of that heritage and ever act to further the interests of the food distributors in our country, so that not only will you have financial success, but the satisfied feeling of being an important part in the challenging and high type profession that has established itself in the respect of all men."

Majority Bows to the Right of Individuals to Be Let Alone

By Bruce Blossat

Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker Magazine and member of a stout minority, will not have to have his eardrums punctured after all. That he will not is a victory not only for him but for every man who may take up a cause alone or with a small band of outnumbered followers.

What was the nature of his triumph? The story began when Grand Central Station, the New York City terminal for the New York Central Railroad, decided to broadcast music, news and commercial advertising over its public address system.

The railroad found it could pick up $1800 a week from advertisers. Railroad finances being what they are, this wasn't to be laughed at.

Advertisers were interested, of course, because the huge terminal daily thronged with thousands who could hardly help listening to the broadcasts. In the trade they call this a "captive" audience.

No doubt the railroad thought the milling commuters and travelers, many with time heavy on their hands, would be only too happy to be regaled by music and news—even though they had to take the standard radio-style dose of commercials along with the rest.

It must therefore have been something of a jolt when complaints streamed in. No dissenter was more vocal—or graphic—than Ross. He's a veteran of many battles for a cause. This time his magazine leaped into the fray with cartoons and comment.

Before long the New York Public Service Commission took note. A hearing was ordered. Railroad officials trooped in, claiming a station poll showed 85 per cent of the "captives" in favor of the broadcasts. "Unscientific," said the opposition regarding the poll.

Spearheaded by the redoubtable Ross, the protesters labeled the broadcasts an invasion of their privacy. The trapped station folk were being exploited, they added.

Ross told the Commission if the noise didn't stop he might consider puncturing his eardrum to give him peace as he passed through the terminal.

The dissenters were no army—just a platoon. But the fuss they made turned the trick. The New York Central, without waiting for word from the Commission, bowed to the wishes of Editor Ross and his coterie of supporters. Quiet—relatively speaking—returned to Grand Central.

If the railroad's poll was even roughly accurate, Ross triumphed over the majority. But though we in America live largely by majority rule, we recognize too that the majority isn't always right. So it's heartening to see that a sincere minority can make itself felt, whether the cause be a big political issue or music in Grand Central.

They Know We Mean Business

Never before in peacetime has the United States told a foreign government to close its consulates in this country. This sharp rebuff has now been delivered to Hungary in reply to its arrest and imprisonment of an American, Robert Vogeler, assistant vice president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Our government was moved to act also because of restrictions Hungary placed on the consular work of the U. S. legation in Budapest.

The closing of Hungary's consulates in New York and Cleveland will cost that country two prime outlets for the spreading of Communist propaganda. The consulates have had little else to do, since Hungarian trade with the U. S. has sagged to less than $3,000,000 a year.

The American order is the second step taken in an effort to stir Hungary into action on the Vogeler case. Earlier we barred U. S. citizens from further travel there. In the present instance, Hungary was warned that further retaliation might come if "the rights and interests of the United States and its nationals continue to be so grossly violated." That might mean severing diplomatic relations.

Our government's action was commendable. The inevitable stalling and double-talk we get from Russia and her satellites in these repeated violations of Americans' liberties have become intolerable. It's time to deal sternly with such crude police tactics.

Needs a Better Excuse

Secretary of State Acheson declares that Valentin Gubitchev, Soviet engineer accused of espionage, does not have diplomatic immunity. It is likely the trial judge in the joint case against the Russian and Miss Judith Coplon will accept Acheson's statement as the fact.

Gubitchev claimed immunity though he actually had been an employee of the United Nations at the time he was arrested for spying. UN employees do not generally enjoy such protection. Both his and Miss Coplon's defense attorneys are resorting to every device to prevent the defendants coming to trial.

One or more of these maneuvers may succeed. But at least it will be nothing so transparent as a flimsy diplomatic cloak for a man who has no proper claim to it.

Truman's Economic Prophets Seem Bent on Making Policy

By Peter Edson
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The "Business and Government" report of the President's Council of Economic Advisers is turning out to be not so much of a peace message as it was at first cracked up to be. Business representatives in Washington, after reading it the second and third time to figure out some of the bigger words and the more obscure passages, have been coming up with some new answers. One of them is that this is no olive branch and kiss on the brow from Truman's fair-dealing economic planners to the fair-haired captains of industry.

The last two sections of the report deal with the council's own analysis of what its job should be. It will be recalled that former Chairman Edwin G. Nourse resigned from the council because of a difference of opinion on this point. Dr. Nourse thought the council should be principally advisory to the President. Vice Chairman, now Acting Chairman Leon Keyserling thought the council should be an active policy-making group, throwing its weight around wherever possible to influence people and make friends for its policies. The new report is almost pure Keyserling, since the third member of the council, John D. Clark, an ex-Standard Oil official, is now the council's only older statesman, balance wheel and restraining influence. In a nutshell

The Keyserling philosophy seems to be spelled out in this passage: "The council should not be simply a reviewing body which looks over the proposals made by operating agencies and recommends to the President how much these proposals may be fused into a consistent and sound economic policy. Our work to be effective must commence at a much earlier stage in the process. It should include participation in the developmental thinking about those policies and programs which are of central concern to the whole economy."

In other words, some business representatives in Washington view this as a declaration by the council that it intends to have a hand in the making of government economic policies from here on out.

Nor does the council apparently intend to stop at giving the executive branch of the government the benefit of its advice. It makes a pass at offering to tell Congress what it should do about things. For proof, get a load of this jaw-breaking 88-word sentence from the council's report:

"The signatories of this report have never found any reason to believe that our special service to the President under the employment act could be inconsistent with that degree of co-operative servicing of congressional committees—particularly the Joint Committee on the Economic Report—which has become the traditional practice of policy advisers to the President who are set up under the law, entrusted by law with a specific field of study and advice, and responsible under law for explicit participation in reports and recommendations transmitted to the Congress."

Willing to Hand Out Advice
"The 'problems' which such advisers face . . . have been exaggerated," the report continues . . . "and it is less important that the council be spared these 'problems' than that the Congress . . . have access to our open and full discussion of economic fact, outlook and policy."

As for the type of policy on which the council seems willing to give its advice, the report offers several hints. In a section on "Policy Making" near the end of the report, it mentions the size of the defense program required for national security and the question of how many houses should be built in an inflationary period.

Several pages earlier there is a suggestion that government is better equipped to deal with economic situation than is business, because government can act "on a massive scale."

On the controversial questions of pensions, unemployment insurance and other social security measures, the council's report is bold enough to state policy, without even being asked for it: "We also believe," it says, "that as (social security) coverage becomes more general, larger part of social security receipts should be obtained through general revenues rather than payroll taxes."

That would seem to be paying the way for tossing the contributory social security payment system right out the window.

All this leads to the belief that in this supposedly conciliatory report to business, the Council of Economic Advisers is making considerable of a bid for more power for government planners.

Knowledge Must Be Usable Britain's Recognition of

Dr. Edmund W. Sinnott, president of Yale's scientific school, suggests that 10,000,000 amateur scientists be mobilized to help push back the frontiers of knowledge.

As Sinnott sees it, this swarm of researchers would go about collecting bugs, flowers, rocks and other items of nature; observing stars; studying the weather in various out-of-the-way spots, and otherwise blazing new trails.

We'll agree to Dr. Sinnott's proposal on one condition: that another array of at least 1,000,000 be assembled to make something understandable out of the hodge-podge the researchers will collect.

Scientists are already too far behind as it is digesting the mountains of information scholars continue to pile up. We need not only to extend the frontiers; we need to put the findings into manageable condition. Then they'll have some meaning for the ordinary man who wants to understand his world.

OUR PEGS COME DOWN

We saw last week that if God goes, then everything worth while goes with Him—everything lacks basis, permanence, ultimate meaning. The whole situation is summed up in these words: "And then—so the Lord of hosts declares—the peg driven in so firmly shall be wrenched out and give way, till everything that hung upon it shall come down." (Isaiah 22:25, Moffatt.)

When the peg of material civilization upon which we have hung everything is wrenched out by economic dislocation, and gives way, then everything we have hung on it—our plans, our hopes, our futures—gives way with it and goes down in a crash. We have hung everything on the wrong peg—the insecure peg of money. That peg should have been God; for, as He holds amid the stress of things, everything holds.

One of the richest men of a Middle Western city thought of what he could give his daughter as a heritage. He began with financial securities, went on down the list, but rejected all material legacies as too insecure. He finally fastened on religion as the only secure inheritance he could give his child—an interesting conclusion, for he himself was not religious. But there was a difficulty with that decision—the child could not take religion as a heritage. For religion to become really hers, she had to choose it.

But it is not easy to choose a faith now, for the intellectual climate has changed from traditional to scientific. In the traditional climate you simply took what was passed on from generation to generation without question; but in a scientific climate everything has to be verified for science believes in verified hypothesis. Can the knowledge in the schoolrooms be verified hypothesis? This is an impossible dualism, and it makes religion impossible for the modern man.

The pegs on which we have hung our modern civilization are coming down. We are at the end of what Sorokin calls a "sensitive society." It has exhausted itself against the facts of life. It is becoming bankrupt. When we take a new center—God—will that center be capable of verification? Will He verify Himself to us as self-authenticating?

O God, if I find Thee at all, I want to find Thee with my whole being, for I know that a faith which does not hold my intellect will soon hold my heart. I would have both held by Thee. Help me. Amen.

Rules For Wives Who go Along On Husbands' Business Trips

The wife who is lucky enough to have her husband ask her to go along with him on a business trip should rate a repeat invitation if she lives up to the following:

One. Forgets home while she is away from it, instead of worrying out loud over how things are going in her absence.

Two. Is tolerant of the people to her husband introduces her to, instead of being super-critical.

Three. Is a good sport about doing whatever the group she finds herself with wants to do.

Four. Doesn't keep inquiring about the price of anything. May-be her husband wants a little vacation from such worries.

Five. Doesn't complain about food or hotel service, the weather, or anything else that doesn't meet her requirements.

Six. Fits her plans in with those of her husband, instead of making him juggle his appointments so that he can fit in with her plans.

Seven. Can look after herself, No Clinging Vines, Please.

Balance of Power

I Love My Doctor

By Evelyn Barkins

XXVII
I HAD expected to wake up after that very unusual sixth-month celebration feeling like Columbus on the day he docked. Instead of which I got out of bed like a drowsy emerging from a washing machine.

"You look awful," my mother said when she stopped by. "Do you have a fever? Let me feel your head."

"Don't start borrowing trouble. I'm feeling fine," I said trying to sound like a seasoned commando ignoring a flesh wound.

"Well, I don't know," she persisted. "I don't like how you look. Why don't you tell John? After all, he is a doctor." Which was exactly why not. Just as in ordinary matters the average physician's medical care for his family makes the delirious cobbler with his shoeless children seem like a paternal philanthropist, so in case of actual illness his concern and fear are magnified beyond normal proportions.

I remember one time when we were married about three months, when I fell and twisted my ankle. "Now look John," I protested, when he insisted on an X-ray as if I had just been pried out of a head-on collision. "It's obviously only a simple strain. I've had them before. Why do you worry about every little thing from a cut finger to a shaving nick?"

"I suppose it's because I know all the bizarre and incurable things in medicine," he said. "And I see so much of sickness everywhere, that I dread its happening here. Do you see?"

After an X-ray was taken (he usually was as victorious in things of this kind as Hitler in his heyday) and he was reassured that there was no break in my bone, John simply forgot the whole matter.

"Aren't you going to tape it up?" I asked, after a long day's limp. "That's what you did to Mrs. Wilson's ankle, and that's what the camp doctor did to me the last time it happened."

JOHN was relaxing as usual, with a medical journal, and while I questioned this type of literature as means of recreation, I dared not say so aloud in view of the Perry Mason corpses and gory stilettes that furnished mine.

"Let it alone," he grunted, without even looking up. "I'll heal you. Nothing serious. Just let it alone."

The next day my ankle still bothered me a little, and my wounded feelings a great deal, so I determined on a new course.

Just as the last evening patient was leaving, I sat down in the waiting room, and said when John opened the door: "I'm next."

He looked surprised, but gallantly seized the cue. "Come right in, madame," he said professionally, and then, dropping the act, stretched and said, "Gosh, I'm tired."

"Not too tired if I were Mrs. Gwendolyn Xanthippi?" I hurried this out as if it were a grand jury indictment.

He stopped stretching. "What's the matter?" he asked.

"My ankle hurts. I want it taped, or at least I want a short-wave treatment like you gave Mrs. Wilson. If I were a patient I'd get one!" I said heatedly. "Well, I'll be one. I'll pay you—or you can send the bill to my husband!"

John started to laugh. "Look, darling," he said, coming over to me. "I'd never neglect you ever. I promise. But a short-wave treatment at best can only give temporary relief, say, for a few hours or so, but that's all. Any other benefit Mrs. Wilson got was pure psychological effect. And you can't get that since I've told you better. Now, do you understand?"

Gradually, I came to accept the doctor's philosophy of personal medicine, although I never liked it or wholly understood it. I too

THE greatest mystery of modern medicine, at least to me, is how people can swallow red or blue or green liquids that, underneath their fancy labels, actually contain nothing but vitamin B, or aspirin mixed with sugar water, and then report the most astounding reactions, from a totally unconnected attack of rheumatism, to poison ivy.

But such thinking, in our house, was lower than Benedict Arnold's. With true professional Spartaism, our medicine cabinet was (and still is) bare of any rosy bottles except for aspirin for headaches, hair tonic for John, cosmetics for me, and a little iodine, or metaphen, or any other antiseptic that was most recently received in the mail.

"No cough medicine? No pills?" my mother demanded as if we were nonbathing cannibals. "I've never seen civilized people live like this!"

Like many lay people I have met, my mother was under the erroneous impression that a doctor's home probably came equipped with sterilizers in the kitchen, diathermy machines in the bedroom and autoclaves in the bathroom; that he and his family were daily germproofed, vitamin laden, hormone injected, and vaccinated; that only food approved by the Council on Food and Drugs of the American Medical Association was consumed; and that prophylactic fumigations of the whole house took place periodically.

Her immediate reaction to the routine John and I followed was like that of a child who suddenly discovers that there is no Santa Claus. For her sake only, I sometimes wished that we might have been one of that literal-minded minority among physicians who do come close to her ideal. These men (a minority, I repeat) read every controversial medical article published without even sensing the controversy.

The Doctor Says—

Spasms of Coronary Arteries Brought on by Over-Exertion

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

The heart beats 70 or more times a minute throughout life. Thus the heart is the most active muscle in the whole body. The heart, like other muscles, must have plenty of blood in order to keep up its activity satisfactorily.

The coronary arteries supply blood to the heart muscle. If these arteries are narrowed because of disease or develop spasms which contract them and do not allow the blood to flow through freely, difficulties can and do occur.

Pain over the chest is the most common symptom of a spasm. The pain is generally absent during rest and develops following exertion. A person who has pain in the chest when climbing stairs, when running for a street car or train or some other activity which could formerly be performed without difficulty is at least under suspicion of not having enough flow of blood through the coronary arteries.

Don't Neglect Signs
Such pain in the chest following exertion is a warning signal. The person who experiences such signs should not neglect them. Of course, the diagnosis must be made and the degree of difficulty figured out by examinations and tests. However, a person with such difficulty is always told to avoid those activities which bring on pain, since this is a sign of an insufficient supply of blood to the heart.

Other measures may also be necessary. These are frequently a close connection between this difficulty and nervous strain or excitement. A calmer life and the avoidance of emotions such as anger is desirable.

Some drugs or medicines are also useful. Drugs of the nitrite group are especially helpful in dilating the coronaries, but these should not be taken except under the advice of a physician.

Note: Dr. Jordan is unable to answer individual questions from readers. However, each day he will answer one of the most frequently asked questions in his column.

QUESTION: What causes a man to be sleepy all the time even after many hours of sleep? He often complains of pain in the back of the neck and that his shirt collars seem to be getting too tight. Should someone like this be under the care of a physician?

—C. E. N.

ANSWER: It certainly seems as, though something definitely was wrong and careful tests and diagnosis are desirable.

Your Income Tax Primer

By RICHARD A. MULLENS
NEA Special Correspondent

When you have reported all of your income in the appropriate schedules as explained in the first eight articles, you are now ready for the next step.

Add the figures in the right-hand column on page 2 and put the total on the line marked "Total income (or loss) from above sources." Then copy this total on page 1, as Item 5. Now, on page 1, add Items 2, 3, 4, and 5, to get your total taxable income. It goes in Item 6 and is called your adjusted gross income.

If your adjusted gross income is less than $5000 you may compute your tax by using the tax table on the back, or page 4, of the return. This table automatically allows you about 10% your adjusted gross income for charitable contributions, interest, taxes, medical expenses, and the like. If such deductions exceed 10% of Item 6, it will usually be to your advantage to itemize them and compute your tax on page 3. The next article will give detailed instructions on when it is wise to use the tax table.

During the year, I spent seven days away from home, on an inspection trip for my employer. I drove my own car, on the third and fourth days I made round trips by air to report an emergency condition to my employer.

My car cost $2055 in 1949. Depreciation for the year, at 20%, amounted to $411. I drove 1000 miles on business and 9000 miles on personal trips, so I have allocated 10% of total costs to business use.

State tax on gasoline for business use is included in the gasoline item below:

The following expenses were for travel:

During 1949, we rented one room of our six room house. The house cost us $10,000. We computed depreciation on one-sixth of this amount. The expenses of operating the house were as follows:

HOME WORK on home movies will make a production you will be proud to show others beside the family.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

WHILE THE SPIRIT of New Year resolutions are still with us, this is the time for home movie fans to splice and edit their reels. Somehow those 50 and 100 ft. reels pile up and it isn't enough merely to splice them end to end and let them go at that. In Hollywood they say you can make or break a picture in the cutting room. With us amateurs you can make a movie much better with good editing.

Let's define a few home movie terms first. A scene or a shot is the film footage you expose between starting and stopping your camera. A series of such individual shots, all related to each other and spliced together in logical order is a sequence. And a series of sequences put in logical order to tell a story make the finished picture.

YOU DON'T have to keep your scenes together in the order in which you photographed them, not as long as you have scissors and a good splicer. But you do have to have a working knowledge of all the scenes in the reel and an idea of how to arrange... or re-arrange... them into a logical or interesting story.

Begin by writing down a brief description of each scene as you run your reel slowly through the projector or viewer, if you are fortunate enough to have one. By studying the list you can decide on the new sequence and make a new list.

RULE NUMBER ONE is to eliminate all bad shots. That's one way, incidentally, to gain a reputation as a superior photographer for all that is shown are good pictures. Of course they needn't be discarded entirely if they have some personal value. Put all these too-light, too-dark or otherwise spoiled shots on a separate reel for personal family viewing only.

If any movie fan has experienced, as I have, the nuisance of a reel breaking at a bad splice during a showing, he'll understand the emphasis placed on good splicing equipment and proper procedure. While most splicers are straight-across, there are some favorable arguments for the diagonal splicer. Being longer than a straight line, the bonding area is greater, and the strain during

OF COURSE you can save a great deal of editing time later if you plan scenes in advance and shoot them in the right sequence. Consulting the film guide for proper exposure, or a meter, will avoid the necessity of pruning bad spots. And correct panning will eliminate one of the worst beginner's faults... the urge to use the camera like a machine gun, zipping over the subject matter in a hurry to get to the point of interest.

There are certain stock "continuity" shots that can be taken at any time, but can be used in putting the story together. A simple example is anything that'll show a passage of time or change of scene... like the auto wheels or calendar pages turning.

Theft at Farm Bureau Office

The office of the Pettis County Farm Bureau, 410½ South Ohio avenue, was broken into sometime between the hours of 6:30 and 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening.

A filing cabinet was pried open and two cash boxes were taken to a rear room where one was broken open and over $150 taken.

Apparently the thieves or thief was in a hurry because a crumpled bill and some small change was left lying on the floor.

Police and state troopers are of the belief the robber was scared away from the office taking the second cash box with him.

Roy I. Coplen, county agent, said the exact amount of money that was in the second box, was not known. He said there would have to be a further check before it could be ascertained.

Merle Vaughan, associate county agent, said he entered the office about 7:30 o'clock and a few moments later discovered the robbery. Coplen said he left the bureau office around 5:30 o'clock.

A 1949 Mercury coach driven by W. J. Dougherty of 916 South Massachusetts avenue and a 1947 Willys jeep quarter-ton pick-up truck driven by J. S. Kirk and owned by Western Union Telegraph company of Dallas, Tex., were involved in a collision at the intersection of Main street and Missouri avenue at 5:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The Mercury suffered a damaged right rear fender and back bumper. The jeep truck was not damaged.

A settlement was made at the scene.

Criticism on Mann Act Case

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 11.—(P) —A Mann Act case that brought sharp criticism from Federal Judge Richard M. Duncan last month was ordered dismissed Tuesday by that judge.

The defendant, Charles Eugene Taylor, had been charged with inducing a 14-year old girl to come to St. Joseph from Atchison, Kas. When the case was called in court in December, Judge Duncan criticized the state on the ground that the case had been "dumped" in federal court while it rightfully belonged in a state court.

Prosecuting Attorney O. R. Newcomer came back the following day with a statement that the government had issued a warrant for the defendant and that the state had merely cooperated by turning Taylor over to federal authorities.

Later, Judge Duncan said Newcomer was correct. He repeated however, that the case was one that did not belong in federal court. He said there was certain factors in the case that led him to that belief.

Taylor and the girl had planned to get married but the girl had no blood relatives or legal guardian to give the required permission.

The Press Meets the Budget-Confidentially

Newsman go to School With HST to Help You Understand, They Hope

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Once a year, early on a Saturday morning, a couple of hundred sleepy-eyed Washington newsmen troop into the White House for a unique session with the President called the "budget seminar."

It's unique because before they go in about 50 per cent frankly admit they don't know enough about the budget to ask an intelligent question. When it's over, they didn't get a line of copy from it. They swear they'll never go to another one.

But they always do, in the hope they'll come away with a better understanding of the complications of a new national budget before it becomes headline headaches for the public a few days later.

The afternoon before the seminar, the Bureau of the Budget secretly doles out to each White House correspondent about eight pounds of paper. This includes the next year's budget, a summary of it, a summary of the summary, and charts which are supposed to make the summary of the summary clearer. It's all stamped "confidential" and "hold for release until the President gives the message to Congress."

The crowd starts showing up early at the White House movie room, where the seminar is held. Press agents from many of the government agencies manage to get in. They're not allowed to ask questions. But they plant them. No government employees other than those in the Budget Bureau are supposed to get advance copies of the budget, so the press agents rush to telephones after the session to tell their bosses what they managed to learn by keeping over shoulders and from planting queries.

Then there are the corny gags: "There's the Russian Tass reporter; what he gets out of this will confuse Red intelligence so badly it'll be set back two years." "This year's budget is the best ever; it's exactly the right thickness to shore up my sagging desk."

"I slept with the summary under my pillow last night, cured my insomnia and dreamed they were going to eliminate taxes."

When the President walks in with Secret Service men and accompanied by Budget Director Frank Pace, Asst. Director Fred Lawton and Secretary of Treasury John Snyder, everybody in the room gets quiet and stands.

Then the public address system begins to work and the annual seminar is on. The President calls some of the reporters by their first names in answering their questions. Some questions he cuts off short and a reporter sits down disgruntled. The President is in high good humor, laughing and putting out gags as good as any that the press corps produces. It's too bad they're off the record.

About half of the queries he throws to Pace and Snyder to answer. Pace is friendly and quick and informed with his replies. Most of the questions aren't very penetrating. One reporter stands and asks about a $12 million item. In a loud whisper another reporter says:

"My gosh, why waste questions"

Getting Information on the Budget is Not Simple

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(P)—I wanted to write something simple that went like this: "The President figures it will cost about $42.4 billion to run the government another year. Of that amount, $..... will be paid in salaries to people working for the government."

That didn't seem like much work. All I had to do was turn a few pages in the budget and get the answers, I thought.

The President's budget and budget message—together they're as thick as a city telephone directory—went to Congress yesterday.

But I'd heard this was a big improvement—in organization and clarity—over any previous message by the President.

Of course, the President didn't write the whole thing himself. He couldn't have written all of it.

Various assistants helped put it together. And it was the assistants who helped the President figure out it would cost $42.4 billion to run the government.

In other years, when I wanted to dip into the budget, I always approached on tiptoe with a magnifying glass and two detectives.

But this year, after all the improvements I had heard about in the last budget, I just walked right up to it by myself.

All I had to do, I thought, was just open it and pretty soon, I'd find what I was looking for.

A Bad Move

It was a bad move. I just wanted to find out how many people worked regularly for the government and how much dough they got.

Under the defense department I read: "In the Army's estimates for 1951, 630,000 man-years are estimated for officers and enlisted personnel."

Quick, I put in a call to a man I knew at the defense department and he said "630,000 man-years" about such small sums as 12 million, in a $43 billion budget?"

That brings a general laugh. Then there is a long pause and the President bids the audience about not being prepared and offers the suggestion that maybe the budget is getting so simple it speaks for itself. That needling draws a question about a $19 billion item for foreign aid. Price answers:

"That's new money that will be spent. It doesn't include carry-over funds which will also be spent this year. Carry-over funds are always a very confusing item in the Federal budget."

Then it's all over. And outside Secretary Snyder walks off with a reporter explaining:

"This thing is a lot simpler than it used to be. The President insists that we try to get the figures so that every citizen will know what they mean. By the way, isn't it amazing how much detail the President has on the budget?"

means the Army will have an average of 630,000 men in uniform in 1951.

I went back to the budget again and searched some more for total figures on people regularly drawing government pay.

Then I picked up the phone again. I phoned all over Washington: to the Budget Bureau itself, the House, the Senate, the Library of Congress, the Capitol Architect, the U.S. Courts.

Finally Got the Answer

I just wanted to find out how many people worked for the government: department heads, civilian employees in the executive branch, the assistants and staffs of the Senators and Representatives, the stenographers, the elevator operators, judges, U. S. attorneys, court attendants, librarians, in short, everyone drawing government pay.

I finally got the answer which may be a little off but is close enough. It will do. The total is 3,500,000 people, including members of the armed forces, regularly drawing government pay.

The total breaks down like this: armed forces—1,507,000; civilians in the executive branch—1,960,000; legislative branch, including Senators and Representatives—7,200; U.S. courts—4,300.

And of the 42.4 billion the President figures government expenses will run next year, about $11,000,000,000 is for paying those 3,500,000 people.

Claims to be Jesse James

White-bearded J. Frank Dalton holds a six-gun as he lies in his sickbed at New York after announcing that a change-of-name petition was filed in Franklin County, Mo., circuit court seeking to restore his "true name"—Jesse James. In bed while a broken bone mends, Dalton, who says he is 102, brought forward five old friends to bear out his story that he is the famed outlaw. He says the victim of the April 3, 1882 shooting in St. Joseph, Mo., was Charlie Bigelow, not Jesse James as history has recorded it. (AP WIREPHOTO)

'Stay in Your Grave, Jesse' Says Boyle

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(P)—There's a cantankerous old galoot in town who says he's Jesse James and I wish he wouldn't say it.

Because there is always the odd doubt it might be true.

And that would be as disturbing as if Robin Hood should come alive again and lose a bow-and-arrow match with an unemployed Indian.

The gent who claims he's Jesse James is a white-bearded, bed-ridden man named J. Frank Dalton, who certainly is old and certainly can cuss like a man out of the last century.

History says that outlaw Jesse James, while living in St. Joseph, Mo., under the nom-de-pistol of Mr. Howard, was shot to death on April 3, 1882. He was plugged from behind by a member of his own band, Bob Ford, while hanging a picture.

Twarn't Jesse

But, now, after all these years, along comes Dalton and says no, twarn't Jesse that was killed—it was Charlie Bigelow, still another member of the band. But they buried Charlie as Jesse to fool the federales and Jesse escaped and has lived ever since as J. Frank Dalton.

If this account is true—and there are those who believe it, just as there are those who believe that if you leave a horseshoe in a jar of water it will turn into a snake—old Jesse would be high on 103 years old, something of a record in the outlaw industry.

To the effete east it is a matter of mere jest whether ole Frank is ole Jesse, but it isn't to anyone who spent his boyhood in the Missouri haunts of the James band. To us Jesse then was a symbol of the defeated South, a man who refused to surrender, who robbed the rich and helped the poor.

Rebe of Glamor

It is a lousy outlaw indeed who doesn't have this robe of glamor thrown around him after death.

They charge that a (Stinson) four-passenger plane rented from the company by McConnell as pilot to fly the four to Iola was not in good mechanical condition.

The engine was missing fire as McConnell attempted to take off from the field here. It crashed from a height of 75 or 100 feet as he attempted to turn back and land at the field.

The suit was filed in circuit court late yesterday.

this is the place to throw a loose high card, even the ace.

In his hand No. 2 Mr. Frey brings out a very interesting point. Here is the hand:

Four-handed—Both sides need 50 for initial meld.
Discard pile—Up-card 9
You have made your draw.

The average person, after drawing, might meld the three aces immediately. Mr. Frey points out that you should not meld the three aces on the first round, if there are four or five cards in the pack, make your meld even though you cannot get the pack.

The melding of three aces is the most economical meld that you can make. The reason that you should hold up the melding of the aces for at least one round is that your opponent, not knowing that you have three aces, may discard an ace at his first opportunity.

Also, by letting the pile build up a little before you meld your three aces, you put your partner

The next question is what to discard. As I have repeatedly said, discard one of your high cards in the early stages. You do not lose much if your opponents pick it up; it is better to let one of them go in the early stages than later on.

Be Healthy!

Modern medicine has made the physician a friendly counselor who is as much interested in keeping you well when you're healthy as in curing you when you are ill. A modern way to learn about health is through this newspaper's medical column, "The Doctor Says." Edwin P. Jordan, M. McKENNEY Answers Your Questions

CANASTA

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY America's Card Authority
Written for NEA Service

As I dictate today's article I have in front of me a book entitled "How to Play Canasta" by Richard L. Frey. "Dick" Frey is no newcomer among card players. He is one of the original 15 life masters in bridge, and some time ago he wrote a book entitled "The Complete Hoyle."

He is very thorough in his writing, and has a number of illustrative hands in his book on Canasta. Today I am going to give you a couple of them, dealing with the initial meld and what to discard.

YOUR HAND
A - K K K - 9 9 9 - 7 7 - J - 10 - 4

Four-handed—Both sides need 50 for initial meld.
Discard pile—Up-card Q
You have made your draw.

Q—Should you make an initial meld of the 3 kings and 3 nines?
A—No. As a rule you should not use more than 4 cards to make an initial meld of 50. Mr. Frey points out that a hand depleted to less than 7 cards has little prospect of contributing to the subsequent earnings of the partnership.

Q—What should you discard?
A—You have 2 trios of high cards in what is a poor hand. Your chances of getting the pack are small. If you discard a king or nine, and your opponent takes the pack, your chance of building a canasta has been reduced; and from then on a discard from either of the trios will be a dangerous discard.

Mr. Frey says that the best play is to discard the 4; but he also says that if there is only one card in the discard pile at this point,

Designed to Allow All Boy Students To Play Basketball

The Smith-Cotton high school intra-mural basketball league got under way Monday night. The league is really two leagues made up of the senior high division, which consist of sophomores and those above that grade, and the junior high league consisting of freshmen and below. The league is designed to give all the boys in Smith-Cotton high school a chance to play in competitive basketball even though they may not be able to make the "A" and "B" squads. The leagues also give the boys a chance to learn basketball, which may prove valuable to the Tiger squad in the future.

Each league is made up of six teams with eight boys on each squad. The rules are so that each boy on a team will get to play at least a half game. The teams play through two rounds of games, playing each team twice.

Medals to be Awarded At the end of the season each member of a championship team will receive a medal.

In the first round of games played Friday afternoon in the junior high league and Tuesday in the senior high league the following teams won. Bears are Hard To Stop in MIAA

By the Associated Press
Who's going to stop the Bears of Southwest Missouri State, Spring-field? That was the big question in M. I. A. A. basketball circles today.

Coach Andy McDonald's Bears opened their conference schedule last night, 64-33, over the Rolla Miners. It was Springfield's tenth victory of the season without defeat.

It was also the 33rd Springfield victory in 35 games over a two-year period. Gene (Old Reliable) Ruble paced a well balanced Bear attack with 15 points.

Missouri Valley college continued its winning ways in the M. C. A. U. The defending champion Vikings won their second league start, 48-44, over the strong West-minster Blue Jays who were un-dergoing their first conference loss.

Tarkio, luckless in the confer-ence, avenged an earlier defeat by whipping Graceland (Ia.) Junior college 62-35, at home last night.

Drury's Panthers fell before the strong Pittsburg (Kas.) State Gorillas, 82-44.

There are no games in either conference tonight.

Eddie Erdelatz is Head Navy Coach

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 11—(P)—Eddie Erdelatz, a veteran grid-iron tutor at 36, is the new head football coach at the U. S. Naval Academy.

Erdelatz, who for the past two years has been coaching ends for the professional, San Francisco 49ers, will be permitted to select his own assistant coaches and they will get four-year contracts, Cald-well said.

He succeeds George Sauer who quit two weeks ago after the ac-a-demy announced dismissal of his two leading assistants, Bog Ingalls and Vic Bradford.

Screen Pass From Side With Option Is Dependable Scorer for Michigan

By Ernie McCoy
Michigan Coach

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — (P) — Michigan's screen pass from the side starts as illustrated in the top half of the accompanying diagram.

The ball is passed from 2 to 1. Player 1 passes in to 3, follows his pass to the outside and around Player 3 gives off to 1, at the same time moving forward in order to pick off the man covering the latter, so that 1 will be cleared for a scoring opportunity.

If the ball isn't fed to 1, 3 returns it to 2, as shown in the lower diagram. The same play is then started on the other side, involving 2 and 5.

Note that 4 clears to the other side, keeping the middle open in the original maneuver.

In the lower option, 4 stays on the opposite side, while 1 circles around and out, so the cutter will have clear sailing once he breaks around.

The screen pass from the side is a dependable scoring play.

Walker Takes Shot Crossing Key in California Weave Off Double Post

By Nibs Price
California Coach

BERKELEY, Calif. — California employs a continual offensive weave involving a double post, and three outside men.

The posts, 4 and 5 in the accompanying diagram, are six-foot-three Bob Walker and six-five John Cunningham, respectively.

Player 3 starts the maneuver by dribbling in toward the center, passing to 2, while the two appeal to be changing places. Player 3, however, breaks in toward the corner as if for a return pass, as is consistent with the usual pattern.

At the same time, and 5 are continually changing places with their own two-man weave.

Timed properly, Walker will come across and into position, so that 2 launches his pass behind a screen set up by the breaking of 3 toward the corner.

Taking the ball, Walker, almost catlike in his agility around the key, takes a loop shot.

Washington State Forward Fires From Behind Deep Double Screen

By Jack Friel
Washington State Coach

PULLMAN, Wash. — Preliminary maneuvering brings the Washington State players into the positions shown in the accompanying diagram.

Guard 2 passes to the pivot, 3, in the outer post position. The former then cuts by 3, and screens for 5. Player 4 times himself, screens with 2 to form a double screen.

The pivot fakes to 2 as the latter cuts by then takes one bounce out and to his left.

Turning, he passes to 5, who uses the two screeners as protection while swinging around for a shot.

Leon Hart Considers Career in Movies

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11—(P)—Leon Hart, Notre Dame's great All-America end who is considering a career in the movies, today holds football's equivalent of an "Oscar."

Hart last night received the Maxwell football club's award as the best college grid player of 1949.

The 21-year-old Hart accepted the honor from club president Bert Bell, commissioner of the pro National-American football league.

Hart, who will marry his home town sweetheart—Lois Newyahr—Feb. 7, said he's set to make a screen test for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer before March 1. It's for a feature part in a remake of the screen epic "Quo Vadis."

William Allen White, famous Kansas editor, is credited with the statement: "Dip your pen into your arteries and write."

S-C Cagers Won Over Warrensburg

Friday Night Tigers Meet Hannibal Team

The Smith-Cotton Tigers defeated the Warrensburg quintet 55 to 44 before a small crowd at the Smith-Cotton high school, Tuesday night, in a non-conference basketball game. The game was the Tigers' tenth win of the season, against one loss.

The Tigers looked cold through the whole contest and will have to sharpen up a lot before the Hannibal game, Friday, although the Tigers outscored the visiting team in every quarter.

Play Hannibal Friday
The Tigers will play their next game, Friday night at Hannibal in the tilt which will break the deadlock in the conference race. Saturday, the Tigers will play host to the M. M. A. cagers.

In the preliminary game of the evening the Tigers "B" team downed the Warrensburg "B" squad 29 to 26 in a close contest. They led at the half, 15 to 13. It was tied at the close of the first period, 8-8. In this game, the S-C "B" squad displayed their best action on the court all season.

First Period Results
Walker started the scoring with a side shot. Heatherly and Smith made two free throws to tie the game up. Holst put S-C ahead with a tip in. Warrensburg countered with Colbern making a charity toss and Heatherly a jump shot to put the Warrensburg Tigers ahead for the time in the game. Ruffin hit side shot and Brown connected with a long one to open up a Sedalia lead. Ruffin made a free throw and Brown a side shot to tie the S-C Tigers out of danger. Smith and Heatherly made a side and set shot to finish the quarter for Warrensburg, while Walker closed the period for S-C with a lay up. The score stood, 13-9 in Sedalia's favor.

Warrensburg Keeps Fighting
The Warrensburg quintet came back hard in the second period only to be outscored at the close of the first half, 26 to 21. Sedalia started off with six points on goals scored by Walker and Brown, followed by free throws by Walker and Holst. Heatherly counted with a side shot for Warrensburg. McCravy came back with a set shot for S-C. Leigh and Heatherly then made eight quick points for Warrensburg on a pair of field goals. Holst made a tip in and Leigh dropped a side shot. Brown and Holst closed the half with a side shot and a free throw to take S-C out of danger.

Good Quarter For S-C
Sedalia outscored the visitors to move into a 10 point lead, 42-32 at the end of the third period. In this quarter, Holst made four goals. Brown two and Ruffin one. In the free throw department Holst and Brown made one apiece. In the last period, Warrensburg was only outscored by a point. Sedalia used reserves freely. Holst and Morgan each made two field goals while Holst, Johnston, Morgan and Ruffin connected at the free throw line.

Officials for the game were: Norman Thompson of Sedalia and Charles Workman of Warrensburg.

Ball Should Be Put in Motion As Right Foot Goes Forward

By Val Mikiel
Bowlerette-of-the-Year
Written for NEA Service

At the beginning of the approach, keep in mind the requirements for a good pendulum swing, straight back, straight forward and fingers up.

Concentrating on this, you hold your starting pace down to the proper distance and speed.

The most important thing to remember about the first step is that it should be a short, natural pace which gets the body into motion.

The ball should be put in motion as the right foot goes forward.

It should not move any farther than the distance of the first step.

We don't want the elbows to move any farther than necessary for a pendulum swing.

The body should move forward from the hips with the first step, taking the hands and feet into motion simultaneously.

We seek an even flow of rhythm.

A good beginning as a general rule will result in a good finish. Never zig-zag in your approach. Go straight to the foul line, putting one foot directly after the other.

Throughout the entire approach the knees should be slightly bent for good body balance.

Cornhuskers Won Tilt Over The Jayhawks

Big Seven Teams Resume Cage Play This Friday

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 11—(P)—Big Seven conference basketball teams paused today to take stock of their early season league activities — and found it confusing.

When championship competition is resumed Friday — Kansas State meeting Oklahoma at Norman, Okla. — the picture will be just as blurred as it was before the season got under way.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers, co-champions last year, upset the Kansas Jayhawks 37-56 at Lincoln, Neb., last night. Kansas had opened the league slate by upsetting favored Oklahoma 56-50 a week ago.

Last Saturday night Iowa State, which failed to win a game in the Big Seven tournament in December, whipped Colorado, one of the early powers, 50-40.

Missouri Was Defeated
And Monday night, Oklahoma defeated Missouri, 41-36, at Norman, Okla. Missouri won the December tournament title, beating Oklahoma 44-42 in the finals.

Nebraska, which first put the tape measure on Kansas' long boy, Clyde Lovellette, beat the Jayhawks with its own tall center, 6-foot 9-inch Bus Whitehead. Bus scored 26 points while limiting Lovellette to a mere 12, his second lowest of the season.

Mighty Tall Boys
Newsmen at Lincoln yesterday reported that Lovellette stood 6-feet 8½-inches — measured in public by "Nebraska tape."

The measuring ceremony was brought about by remarks by Jack Gardner, Kansas State coach, that Lovellette was at least 7-feet 1-inch in height.

Phog Allen, Kansas coach, retorted after the tape stretching ceremonies that a "majority of his (Gardner's) starting lineup are transfer students from other colleges or athletic organizations."

"If records are correct," Allen continued, "Lewis R. Hitch of Griggsville, Ill., a transfer student from Culver-Stockton college, Canton, Mo., is 6 feet 8 inches tall, just a half inch shorter than Lovellette. Hitch is first alternate substitute for Grandpa Brannum."

Clarence Brannum is a Kansas State center.

Question is How to Enforce Sanity Code

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(P)—The nation's sports writers take a dim view of the recent housecleaning agreements among college athletic officials.

By a majority of more than seven to one, the writers who took part in the Associated Press annual year-end poll thought attempts to cut down subsidization would have no effect on college athletics.

Although no direct mention of the NCAA's sanity code was made in the question, many writers referred to it in their answers. Seventy-five of them said nothing could be done, sanity code or no, while 10 thought the housecleaning would have some effect.

The NCAA is meeting here this week, and one of the main questions is how to enforce the sanity code. No action is expected before Saturday.

Playoff Today For Top Money In Golf Meet

Hogan Tees Off Against Snead in Los Angeles Open

By Pete Arthur

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11—(P)—Ben Hogan, game but tired in his amazing golf comeback, tees off today (2:30 p. m. CST) against Sam Snead, who admits he is sharp, in the playoff for the top prize of the $15,000 Los Angeles Open.

Win or lose, Hogan will have engineered one of the great comebacks in golf history.

The 18-hole event may be the rain. The weather bureau says it certainly will be gusty with showers.

Hogan, who's won a lot of them, had his finest triumph in his grasp for 44 minutes yesterday. He posted 280, four under par, and went in to shower confident that his first tournament bid since his auto accident was a success.

Connected With a Birdie
Hogan was dying off when the first hint came. By then Snead had two holes to play and had to have two birdies. But birdie No. 17 he did, with a 10-foot putt.

Eighteen is one of the toughest holes on Riviera's trapped and hilly course. It's a slight dog-leg of 455 yards, but par four.

Snead wound up 15 feet from the pin on his second shot. A gallery of 10,500 was hushed as he carefully sized up the shot, then played the roll perfectly and hit the cup dead amidships for a birdie three to tie Hogan's 280.

The crowd, pro-Hogan all the way, roared as the ball dropped in. It was a windup as sensational as any major tournament has ever seen.

A Fuss Over Two Platoon Style of Play

'A Majority Favors Liberal Substitution'

By Will Grimler

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(P)—The NCAA's sanity code fuss was allowed to simmer today while football coaches let the feathers fly in a battle over the two-platoon system.

The coaches' rules committee went behind locked doors this morning to frame recommendations for changes. The controversial free substitution rule was high on the agenda.

It looked like an all-day knock down, drag-out affair with the two-platoon boys winning in the end.

Questionnaire Sent
"I sent questionnaires, to some 1,000 coaches and received replies from around 600," said Columbia's Lou Little, chairman of the coaches' rules group. "They showed a majority favoring liberal substitution."

The coaches' recommendations are tantamount to adoption. The NCAA rules committee, composed of coaches and faculty heads, act on the proposals later.

The rules meeting took the limelight, temporarily from the sanity code at the annual national collegiate athletic association sessions. The code fight is not slated to come to a head until Saturday.

Under the present rule, players may be substituted in 11-man units, making possible separate offensive and defensive specialized teams.

Proposed Changes
These are other rules changes up for consideration:

1. Rewriting more strongly the rule concerning illegal use of the forearm in blocking.
2. Means of stopping a team from starting a play before the ball is snapped.
3. Changing the rule that groups a number of misplays under the term "personal foul."

Also today the NCAA executive committee was in an all-day meeting to discuss the sanity code and its violations further. The baseball coaches will have their annual dinner tonight.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(P)—The National Collegiate Athletic association is going into the publishing business.

Young Golfer is Homeward Bound

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 11—(P)—Lieut. Gov. James T. Blair Jr., said last night his son, 18-year-old Jim Tom Blair, was on his way home and wouldn't make a bid for honors in big-time golf circles for a while.

The lieutenant governor said he had talked by telephone with his son in Lubbock, Tex. He said the boy had left Dallas, where he was a student at Southern Methodist university, for California by auto.

Young Blair had hoped to participate in an amateur-pro golf tournament on the west coast, his father said.

The lieutenant governor said he had not heard from his son for a time and he contacted police in Lubbock, asking them to broadcast a description of the boy.

Blair said the Texas police did not contact his son, but that the boy called from Lubbock to inform his family of his whereabouts. Blair said he talked his son out of making the trip and that the youth was returning to Jefferson City.
